Sector benefits

There are more than 100,000 schools in the United States alone, and statistics show that more than 150,000 serious crimes occur in these institutions each year. A broad array of other emergencies also can put students, parents, faculty and administrators at risk, including natural disasters, fires and chemical spills. Critical Response Notification Systems (CRNS) are an important and fast emerging category of IT solutions that address the vital need of organizations and communities for reliable, real-time communications and coordinated action in a crisis.
